We use the word gorgeous advisedly--for what other word in the English language could so well express the magnificence of the display or the extraordinary elaborate trimmings on the hats themselves? They are simply stunning--and you will say so when you visit the gaily bedecked Millinery Parlor to-morrow.

No year has ever held so complete a change as has been wrought by the master minds of Millinery fashion-molding--and no display ever held so many startling surprises. Copies--all of them, from the Antique--the headwear of our great-grandmothers girlhood days--except that it is doubtful whether there has ever been such a lavish use of plumes and flowers in the trimming--but they have been used to good effect--and the change, radical as it may seem, is pleasing.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

From the mountains and seashores of the North and South, society maids and matrons are hurrying home, and the long files of vacant houses, which have apparently been asleep for many months, are undergoing great awakenings.

Every one is in a mighty whirl to have all in readiness for the month of October, during which so much is planned to occur in Richmond.

There are numbers of "horse show" and "fair" guests promised, to say nothing of famous lord bishops and other distinguished personages who will remain through the entire session of the General Episcopal Convention.

The hats and gowns of this autumn season are more wonderful in their lovely schemes of color and plan than ever before, so that the women of Richmond will, in this, as other instances, not fall short of their fame for taste and beauty, which they have held for years.

During the past week brilliant weddings have held the interest in the social sphere, and the Gilchrist-Minor nuptials are not soon to be forgotten regarding the beauty of scene and bride.

Following in close succession is the particularly interesting marriage of the namesake of the State of Virginia, Miss Virginia Lee, daughter of the late General and Mrs. Fitzhugh Lee, to Lieutenant John Carter Montgomery, of the Seventh United States Cavalry, now stationed at Fort Riley, Kansas.

On Saturday evening at the Hot Springs, Colonel Sidney Buford, of the Governor's staff from Richmond, was wedded to Miss Elizabeth Lanier Dunn, sister of Mrs. George Cole Scott, of this city.

Numbers of engagements are being whispered and announced, and, all told, the autumn of 1907 gives warning of the gayest season Richmond has experienced in many years.

Virginia has had numbers of her fairest women to make their homes in far away climes, and this year welcomes Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Glasgow, of London, both formerly of this city, who will visit in the near future Mr. John P. Branch, Mrs. Glasgow's father. The foreign dispatches have sent us not a few accounts of the popularity of Mrs. Glasgow in England among the nobility of that realm, and did not exclude the King himself, who has admired her beauty and fascinating manner.

The bevy of debutantes for the season 1907-'8 will by rights lay full claim to the popularity and loveliness which older members of their families have possessed through a long line of ancestry.

Miss Elizabeth Lewis Wheat is a fair representative of the Rutherford and other well-known families in Virginia. She is the daughter of the late Dr. Lewis Wheat and Mrs. Ella Rutherford Wheat, and will take her place as one of the most attractive debutantes of the year.

Miss Rachel Urquhart is distinctly picturesque, and has always been popular with the younger set. Her sister, now Mrs. McCabe, but formerly Miss Lily Urquhart, held full sway in the social world of the State from the first moment of her young ladyhood.

Miss Frances Myers, who has been in Europe for the last year, returns to join her old schoolmates, many of whom will make the formal "bow" together. Miss Myers, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. D. Myers, Jr., is rarely gifted and is an exceptionally pretty young girl.

Miss Elizabeth Johnston, daughter of the late J. J. Johnston, and a sister of the author, Mary Johnston, has also been abroad recently. Miss Johnston is most attractive, and 'tis whispered she will become famous as her sister has done in the literary world.

Miss Mary Warfield Crenshaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Dabney Crenshaw, is a blonde, and gives promise of being a great belle. She has been identified with the smart set of juveniles who have schooled and played together since their babyhood.

Miss Virginia Whitley was one of the Richmond girls who studied last winter in Dresden, at a most select school, and toured Europe with Miss Frances Myers and others during the recent summer months. She is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Whitley, Jr., and is remembered as one of the prettiest little girls who has grown up in Virginia.

Miss John Moore, the younger daughter of the late Dr. Thomas Moore and Mrs. Moore, of Richmond, returns in October to her native city after a long trip around the world. Miss Moore is a cultured and brilliant conversationalist and has her full share of good looks.

Miss Lucy Parke Taylor is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Taylor, Jr., and the granddaughter of Mrs. George W. P. Bagby. She is every respect inheritor of the charms for which her maternal and paternal lines have been famed, and is not lacking in the enviable quality of personal beauty.

Several others will find it too hard to resist the inveigling horse show and the gay winter to follow, so will fall into this bewitching list of "buds," who are wise indeed to choose this year.

Dunn--Buford. The wedding of Miss Elizabeth Lanier Dunn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lanier Dunn, of New York and Hot Springs, Va., to Colonel Algernon Sidney Buford, Jr., son of Colonel and Mrs. A. S. Buford, of Richmond, was celebrated in St. Luke's Church, Hot

A SPONSOR FOR THE REUNION

MISS ELEANOR HOLLINGSWORTH GRABILL, of Woodstock, Va., elected maid of honor by the Sons of Confederate Veterans, Ninth Congressional District, to the Confederate Reunion in Norfolk, Va., October 18, 1907. Miss Grabbill is the daughter of Captain John H. Grabbill, of Company E, White's Battalion of Virginia Volunteer Cavalry.

Springs, Saturday evening, September 21st, at 8 o'clock, the Rev. Mr. Mayo officiating.

The church was elaborately decorated with pink roses and white lilies, the rafters, ceiling and pillars festooned and completely covered with southern sunnys. An arch of roses, lilies and asparagus fern spanned the entrance, and a great bunch of lilies and roses was tied to each pew with wide pink and white satin ribbons. Wedding bells formed of flowers were suspended above the heads of the bride, and many candles were burning on the altar.

The maid of honor, Miss Lanier Dunn, the younger sister of the bride, was charming in white point d'esprit over rose taffeta. The matrons of honor were Mrs. George Cole Scott and Mrs. Frederic Nolting, who wore white satin empire gowns with silver girdles.

The bridesmaids, Misses Beatrice Ayer, of Boston; Eloise Boudot, of Baltimore; Miss Julie Osterloh, of Richmond; Miss Madeline Barnes, of New York; and Miss Gladys Ingalls, of Cincinnati, were exceedingly smart in pink satin empire gowns, with sashes and waist trimmings of chiffon and lace. They carried long-handled baskets of pale pink asters.

Two lovely little flower girls were Misses Isabel and Elizabeth Scott, the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic W. Scott.

The bride came in with her father, who gave her away. She was exquisitely attired in a Parisian gown of white crepe de chine, satin embroidered and trimmed in point lace, with a very long court train. She had a bouquet of lilies of the valley.

An elegant reception was held at Grammercy farm, the Dunn country home, after the wedding. Among the guests present were: Colonel and Mrs. A. S. Buford, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Scott, Mrs. Dunn, widow of General Dunn, U. S. A., the venerable grandmother of the bride; Mrs. D. R. McKee, her aunt; Mr. and Mrs. Julius Walsh, of St. Louis; Mr. G. T. M. Gibson, Miss Sara Gibson, of Baltimore; General and Mrs. Hildekooper, Miss Briggs, Mrs. Hunter Brooke and Miss Brooke, of Philadelphia; Mrs. Osborne and Miss Traub, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Ayer and Miss Katherine Ayer, of Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Melville E. Ingalls, and all of the villa residents and most of the guests at the Hot and Warm Springs hotels.

Gilchrist--Minor.

On the afternoon of the 18th, last Wednesday, a beautiful marriage took place in the Church of the Holy Trinity, Richmond, Va., when Miss Virginia Adair Minor became the bride of Mr. Edward Gilchrist, a native of Boston, Mass.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. J. Gravatt, in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends, at 6 o'clock. The church was tastefully decorated with palms and candles, and the gowns worn by the bride, maid of honor and invited guests made a pleasing spectacle.

The bride wore a beautiful gown of white silk wrought with superb oriental embroidery, a tulle veil, and carried a shower of lilies of the valley. She entered the church with her mother, Mrs. Edmund Christian Minor, who wore black. The only attendant of the bride was her sister, Miss Carrie Minor, a petite brunette, who wore white net over green, set off by an immense bunch of pink roses.

Mr. Francis Cushing Green, of New York, was best man, and cousin to the groom.

The following friends of the bride were groomsmen: James N. Drake, Jr., Charles E. Whitlock, Stuart G. Christian, George D. Mayo, William Minor and George Glimmer Minor, Jr.

Just after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Gilchrist left for the North and sail by October 1st for Naples, and then for Shanghai, where Mr. Gilchrist holds an important position in the imperial customs service.

Torlan--Hodgson.

On Thursday, the 19th instant, the marriage of Miss Sarah Hodgson and Dr. Oscar M. Torlan, of Indianapolis, Ind., was solemnized in St. Luke's Memorial Chapel at the Seawance (Tenn.) University.

The chapel in which the marriage took place is a memorial erected to the bride's father, the late Telfair Hodgson, of Virginia, long associated with the theological department of that university.

Owing to the recent death in last June of the bride's mother, who was Miss Frances Glen Potter, of Georgia, the wedding was very quiet, only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties being present.

Mrs. Torlan has frequently been the guest of Mrs. Stephen Hughes, her aunt, in this city, where she is well known and admired. Her cousin, Miss Jennie Hughes, of Richmond, attended the marriage, which, owing to the prominence of the Hodgsons in the South, is a matter of interest in many States.

Miss Wellford Engaged.

The announcement of the engagement on Wednesday last of Miss Caroline Harrison Wellford to Mr. Frank B. Guest is of great interest in Virginia.

Miss Wellford is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Carter Wellford, of "Sabine Hall," on the lower Rappahannock.

Miss Wellford's mother was one of Virginia's greatest belles and beauties, and is remembered as Miss Harrison, of Brandon, James River, her marriage to Mr. Wellford occurring in the parlors of Westover, the home of her sister, Mrs. Augustus Drewry, at that time.

Mr. Guest, who has many relatives in Richmond, is prominently connected in Virginia and Maryland. He was a successful member of the New York Cotton Exchange, but has recently retired to his handsome estate, "Snowden," near Fredericksburg, where he will make his residence. Mr. Bernard Guest, of Richmond, is his brother.

The marriage will take place at "Sabbath Hall," in November.

Virginia-Pennsylvania Reception.

The Governor and Mrs. Swanson have issued invitations to a reception in the Virginia Building, Jamestown Exposition, on the evening of October 4th, in honor of the Governor of Pennsylvania, from 9 to 11 o'clock. The visiting executive will be attended by his official staff, and the glitter of gold lace and evening gowns and so many pretty things in the Virginia Building will form an imposing spectacle.

A. P. V. A. Excursion.

The many pleasant trips to Jamestown Island, under the auspices of the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities, which have been appreciated and enjoyed by countless hundreds, linger long in the annals of pleasant experience.

This association purposes to have another on October 12th, under the able chairmanship of Miss Betty Ellerson. As usual, one of the James River Navigation Company's spacious liners will be used.
